March 2019

What will you give up? Or will you invest in your life with God?

We are living in the time of the year when our focus will be on the Cross. Our world system challenges us to consider what we will give up during Lent. Some will give up something that was not a part of their life. Some will be very serious, begin strong and then give up on the project. I even met a person who said—"I don't know why I start—I will just fail'!!

My suggestion is that this year we give consideration to starting with a commitment to invest time in God's Word about the cross. Sunday messages will focus on "Cross Marked". Each Worship will focus on a key word that will be reflected in the suggested Scripture readings. A handout will be our responsive reading. Then there will be suggested passages for each day of the week. Most are not lengthy so there should be time to read more than once—perhaps commit to memory or at least meditate on the thought.

Ash Wednesday begins the season of Lent. On that evening we will have a communion service. Speaking that evening will be Justin Carlson who is a seminary student. Please join us as we begin the journey of forty days in a time of worship.

Winter continues—we have adapted and we have cancelled. What will March hold for us? Will the snow melt quickly and cause concerns for our spring? God is in control. We will trust him. He is with us at all times and will be our guide.

Check out the listing of books available in our library that will enrich our life with God. Consider using them to draw near to God.
